HENS NOT STUPID.

Them by Their Ancestors.

Every automobilist knows that when his car approaches a hen instead of calmly stepping to the side of the road and safely in nine cases out of ten she runs ahead in hysterical excitement, doing what she should have done in the first place only when completely exhausted and then only by accident. Apparently other domestic animals have the same annoying habit, and as it often causes their wholly needless death, the usual explanation of it is their stupidity. That is an unfair criticism, for neither birds nor animals are ever stupid—never are, that is, about meeting exigencies which their ancestors were in the habit of meeting.

It is the lesson of immemorial experience for all these creatures that from the pursuit of an enemy that cannot be fought there is safety if anywhere in straightaway flight at topmost speed. Motion in any other direction would give the pursuer a fatal advantage by enabling him to "cut corners" and cover a shorter distance than his selected prey. The hen's mistake is not in running along the road, but in assuming that the automobile wants to catch her and will do so if it can. That assumption is a perfectly natural one, and every living hen is the descendant of innumerable generations of hens that acted upon it exactly as she does.—New York Times.

GOLD LEAF.

Made Now Practically as It Was Made

Nine Centuries Ago.

In an article on gold leaf in the Magazine of Commerce John Mastin says that just as the date of the discovery of gold is too remote even to be guessed at so is the origin of gold leaf lost in antiquity.

On some of the most ancient mummies discovered gold leaf has been used on the skin, tongue, teeth, etc., and in some instances on the coffin itself. It also appears on tombs, monuments and the like, and strange to say, though gliding with "thin sheets of hammered gold" and "skins of gold"—other wise gold leaf—was known to be practiced at least in the eighth century B. C., the process of bringing the gold into these fine sheets or "skins" was, at any rate in the eleventh century A. D., substantially the same as that used today, no advance whatever having been made in the intervening nine centuries.

Further, on some of the Grecian pottery of the fifth century the gold leaf used is as thin as that used today, so that in results obtained also we have not advanced in the least, but still keep practically to the same average thickness as that used on the Egyptian coffins of the third century A. D. and most of the Greek vases of the fifth.

Brougham and Muffed Port.

Lord Brougham who as a member of the house of commons was a most abstemious man, upon his promotion to the peerage acquired less commendable habits. During his long and impassioned appeal to the lords to refrain from rejecting the reform bill of 1832 "five tumblers of muffed port with a dash of brandy, were brought to him at intervals." When he came to his last sentence "I warn you, I implore you—yes, on my bended knee I supplicate you—reject not this bill!" he knelt on the woollack, whence he slipped to the floor. It is recorded in the "Lives of the Lord Chancellors" that "he remained some time as if in prayer, but his friends, alarmed lest he should be suffering from the effects of muffed port, picked him up and placed him safely on the woollack."

WHISTLER TALES.

Some Amusing Peculiarities of the Eccentric Artist.

BARRING OUT BILL BEARERS.

He Knew the Knock of Each Collector and the Amount It Represented. London Cabbies Had Good Reason to Fight Shy of the Erratic Genius.

There was a steady stream of creditors at the King street studio in those days, says a writer in the Century. Whistler made no effort to conceal the fact that he was deeply in debt. One day as we were busily and silently working there came a loud business-like rap at the door. Whistler listened attentively.

"Pst!" said he. "That's one and ten."

Within half an hour there was another rap, not quite so loud.

"Two and six," said Whistler.

"Pst!"

"What on earth do you mean?" I asked after a time.

"One pound ten shillings; two pounds six shillings. Vulgar tradesmen with their bills, colonel. They want payment. Ah, well!" he sighed with an exaggerated air of sadness and returned to his canvas.

Then came another knock, a most gentle, insinuating rap.

"Dear me," said Whistler, "that must be all of twenty! Poor fellow, I really must do something for him! So sorry I'm not in."

I could not take the situation so placidly and seized eagerly the first opportunity of financial aid that presented itself. A rich American, sojourning in London, asked me what he could purchase and take back with him in the way of art.

"By all means get a set of Whistler's etchings," Unquestionably he will make for you a selection. I'll speak to him." I told him, and hurried back with the good news.

Whistler was delighted, and for a day worked busily, overhauling and sorting his proofs. The selection was a splendid one and called for a substantial payment. It was arranged that Whistler should meet the purchaser at a bank in Queen street the following morning and receive his check.

Most men under the circumstances would have thought of little else, but by the next morning Whistler had wholly forgotten his engagement. He had begun a new canvas, and was completely absorbed in it. For a while I expostulated in vain.

"Come, Whistler," I said finally, "you have been away from America so long that you don't appreciate the value of time to the traveler, particularly the American traveler. You must not keep the man waiting."

"Very well," said he, laying down his brush, with a sigh. "Now we'll go."

"Why we?" I replied. "I don't want to go." I protested firmly. To tell the truth, I was looking forward with a great deal of comfort to a morning all to myself.

"Oh, but you must," he said calmly, bringing my coat and hat, and presently we stood in front of the house signaling a cab.

One came up readily enough, but, after one scrutinizing look upon the cabbie's part, drove swiftly by; another went through the same strange proceedings. I looked questioningly at Whistler—this odd circumstance had happened before we were together—but Whistler was calmly signaling. At length a cabbie took us in.

Whistler always carried a walking stick a long, slender wand, a sort of a mahlstick, nearly three-quarters of his own height. We were no sooner seated than he began poking his stick at the horse. The animal reared, plunged wildly and started down the street at a breakneck gallop, while the astonished cabbie swore freely and tugged desperately at the reins. Whistler looked calmly ahead and kept poking.

Butcher boys and grocer boys made wild leaps for safety; outraged cabbies whipped their horses out of the way just in time; burly draymen bawled curses after us, and still we went merrily on. Little wonder, thought I, in the midst of my amazement and resentment, that Whistler never gets the same cab twice.

Suddenly he began waving his cane and shouting "Whoa!" He took the astonished cabbie severely to task for driving so fast upon the public highway and ordered him back to a corner we had just passed.

Here a greengrocer's shop, with its orderly and colorful array of fruits and vegetables, had caught Whistler's eye as we whirled by. He surveyed it critically now from two different positions, the cabbie merely obeying his orders, under the belief, I presume, that it was policy to humor a lunatic.

"Isn't it beautiful?" exclaimed Whistler. He pointed his long cane at one corner. "I believe I'll have that crate of oranges moved over there—against that background of green. Yes, that's better," he added contentedly.

We drove on to the bank, where we found the American pacing up and down in no pleasant frame of mind; but Whistler soon had him pacified, and we left him waving and smiling adieus at us.

The incident at the greengrocer's shop reads like an arrant affectation. It was not, however, Whistler, as usual, was merely most natural. The following morning he posted his case at the corner and painted the shop that pleased him.

A Proud Moment.

The proudest day of her life, this is, said the woman who watched the third floor bride go out dressed in her prettiest frock.

"How do you make that out?" said another woman enviously. "I thought last Thursday was her proudest day. She got married then."

"Ah, yes, but today she goes calling for the first time and leaves one of her husband's cards with her own. Any married woman who can remember back that far will tell you that the first time she distributed the calling cards of some man who belonged to her was the day she truly felt her importance."—New York Sun.

When the Barber Was a Wit.

In original literature the barber is a great figure, and Arabian tales are full of him. In Italy and Spain he was often the brightest man in town, and his shop was headquarters for wit and intrigue. Jassamin became famous as a poet in southern France and recited his verses with razor, scissors, brush and comical gesture as he dressed the hair of fine ladies and gentlemen in his shop. He had a great run, made money, lived fame, and smiles made a book about him.

Hadden't Heard It.

"Money talks," asserted Gilder eleven. "I am not so sure of that," retorted Throckmorton. "It is not on speaking terms with me."—Detroit Free Press.

THE PASSING OF

P. B. BURGESS

Pioneer Viticulturist of Sonoma

Valley Dies at His Home in

San Francisco on Friday

of Last Week

P. B. Burgess, a pioneer viticulturist of this valley, is dead. He passed away at his home in San Francisco on Friday morning of last week at the age of 76 years.

The deceased was the owner of the Victoria vineyards and winery located on the banks of Sonoma creek one mile west of town, and was well and favorably known to all the old families of the Sonoma valley. He was a courtly and hospitable gentleman of the old school who impressed one with a fine personality.

Mr. Burgess leaves a wife and grown family of sons and daughters and a host of friends who will always think of him as a man of fine parts.

The funeral took place in the metropolis last Sunday and was largely attended, many of the deceased's old friends in this valley being present.

Was a Horseshoer in His Day

Bob Fitzsimmons, the ex-champion heavy weight of the world, who is the guest of Jack London on his Glen Ellen ranch, dropped into D. Payne's blacksmith shop one day last week, and peeling off his coat and rolling up his sleeves, went to work and turned out a horseshoe that was really a credit to the horse shoers art. Back in Australia Bob learned the horse-shoeing trade which he followed for a number of years previous to entering the prize ring. It has said of him he was as clever in the blacksmith shop as he was in the ring, and as for the latter he never had a peer while in his prime.

Doing Business at the Old Stand

Suffrage Meeting.

The women of Sonoma Valley are urged to attend the annual meeting of the Equal Rights Association at the home of Mrs. F. T. Duhring next Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Do you know why women were not included among voters when tax qualifications were removed? Because a married woman was not yet a taxpayer and could not use her wages. Her services belonged to her husband. To quote Blackstone: "Husband and wife were one, and that one the husband." But conditions have changed. As the Hon. John D. Long, ex-Secretary of the Navy, once said: "If one man or woman wants to exercise the right to vote, what earthly reason is there for denying it?"

THE POSTOFFICE AND

MULLEN'S STORE

BURGLARIZED.

El Verano Has Its Sensation

Postoffice Safe Blown Open

—$900 in Stamps and

$600 in Cash Taken

El Verano had its sensation Thursday.

At an early hour in the morning of the day in question Mullen's general merchandise store and the village Postoffice, which are housed under the same roof, were entered by burglars, who blew the safe to pieces with dynamite.

Securing $900 in stamps belonging to the Government and $600 in coin and $250 worth of checks, the property of Emmet Mullen, the burglars made a hasty get-away on horseback.

The robbery took place at about 2 a. m. At that hour Emmet Mullen, who occupied a room over the store, was awakened by a dull, muffled report. Hastily dressing he rushed downstairs to the store below to investigate the cause of the explosion. He discovered that the safe had been blown to pieces and its most valuable contents abstracted by the burglars.

These are supposed to be two in number as immediately after the noise made by the blowing up of the safe had aroused the neighborhood two men on horseback were seen to disappear in the darkness.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan was immediately notified of the burglary by phone and in an incredibly short time was in hot pursuit of the burglars.

He traced the two suspects to the railroad track and up the track some distance toward Agua Caliente. Upon reaching the county road just this side of that place all trace of the men were lost and it is supposed an awaiting automobile speeded them out of the county long before daylight.

The cracksmen were no doubt old hands at the business as their work in blowing up the safe and making their get-away showed the skill of professionals.

Deputy Sheriff Ryan returned from his quest Thursday evening. The search was a fruitless one. The men had covered up their tracks so cleverly that not even so shrewd a thief-catcher as Deputy Sheriff Ryan could trace them.

At latest accounts the safe-crackers are still at large and probably never will be apprehended. They are evidently past masters in their unlawful calling.

NATIVE SONS OF

THE GOLDEN WEST

Sonoma Parlor Has a Fine

Meeting Followed by Banquet.

Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N. S. G. W., at its regular meeting held last Monday evening initiated four new members, bringing the membership up to ninety. About forty members were present and after the initiation ceremonies and the business of the parlor had been attended to the members and a number of invited guests sat down to a sumptuous spread which had been prepared for them in the banquet hall off the lodge room by their brothers Paul Robin and Jas. L. Modini, the volunteer chefs for the occasion.

The spread and table decorations were an fait and to the liking of the most exacting of the bon tons, (bong tongs, as Mike would say.) Mayor M. E. Cummings occupied a seat at the head of the table and was called upon to act as toastmaster, which he did in his most amiable way. Speeches were made by J. E. Poppe, a charter member of the Parlor, Prof. Jesse Prestwood and others. Alfred Jensen also favored the natives and their guests with a fine solo.

Good cheer reigned supreme around the banquet board until after midnight after which the members departed to meet again in a body in the grand Admission Day parade, which took place in San Francisco, Friday, in which about fifty participated in their fetching white buff uniforms.

Local Trotters to Participate in Races at the Stadium

Jos. Ryan, Secretary of the Sonoma Driving Club, left for San Francisco, via Lakeville, Wednesday afternoon with a number of local trotting horses which will be entered in the big race meet at the Stadium, San Francisco, today. Among the bunch of horses were Mike C., Salmour and Pat O. These horses have appeared on our local race course several times the past season and have given a good account of themselves. Their records are all under 2.15.

FORCE OF GRAVITY.

How It Would Affect Man's Weight on the Celestial Bodies.

If the planet Mars be really inhabited the people who live there must be an exceedingly agile race. The average weight of a man is about 140 pounds, but the force of gravity on Mars is so much less than on the earth that the 140 pound man would weigh only fifty-three pounds if he were transported thither. With such light weight, and still retaining the same strength, an individual would be able to run with the speed of an express train, go skipping over ten foot walls and do various other extraordinary things. On the moon a man would be even lighter.

But on the sun our 140 pounder would have his troubles. Instead of being an airy individual he would weigh in the neighborhood of a ton and three-quarters. He would probably have the greatest difficulty in raising his hand, for that member would weigh about 300 pounds.

According to scientific computation, a man who on earth weighs 140 pounds would on the other celestial bodies weigh as follows:

The moon, 23 pounds; Mars, 53 pounds; Venus, 114 pounds; Mercury, 119 pounds; Neptune, 123 pounds; Uranus, 127 pounds; Saturn, 165 pounds; Jupiter, 371 pounds; and the sun, 3,871 pounds.—Chicago Tribune.

A SAD STORY.

The Misfortune That Came With a Terrible Tumble.

Fowling is now very little practiced in the Shetland islands, although many eggs are secured annually. Many thrilling stories of fowling adventure are told by the Shetlanders. A man who had undertaken to climb a certain steep cliff was neither very experienced nor very brave, although he boasted of being both. He pushed upward, however, briskly without looking behind until he had got up about 150 feet, when he stopped to breathe. The pause was fatal to his self-possession, and he called out in tones of terror, "Men, men, I am going—I am going." But he still held on for a little, and it was not till he had shrieked many times "I am going" that he did fall headlong.

His comrades, having thus been warned, moved the boat out of the way so that the poor fellow came sheer down into the deep water. Mighty was the plunge, but at length he rose to the surface, when of course he was instantly caught hold of and dragged into the boat. After many gasps and much spluttering of sea water from his mouth, his only remark was, "Eh, men, this is a sad story. I have lost my snuffbox."—Sketches and Tales of Shetland.

The Last Ditch.

When William, prince of Orange, afterward William III. of England, was elected stadtholder of the United Netherlands in 1672 and found himself in the midst of war with England and France he was asked by the Duke of Buckingham whether he did not see ruin impending over his country. "Nay," he answered, "There is one certain means by which I can be sure enough to see my country's ruin. I will die in the last ditch." And, rejecting all terms of peace, he checked the invasion of France by opening sluices and flooding every tract of land, drove them from Holland in 1674 and made honorable terms with England and finally after varying effort brought the war to a successful close by a treaty with France in 1678.

Taken at His Word.

The doctor was telling how he came to lose one of his best paying patients. The man was a hypochondriac, who was always imagining that something terrible was about to happen to him, and the doctor, who was a great jollier, was kept busy trying to reason him out of his morbid condition.

"You have worried yourself until you are bordering on a nervous collapse," said the doctor to him one day. "You shouldn't think about your symptoms all the time, but just attend to your affairs as if there was nothing the matter with you."

"All right, doctor," replied the patient. "I'll do as you say. You needn't come to see me any more."—New York Times.

And He Wasn't.

"Victoria," said her husband, "you will not mind it, I presume, if I should happen to be detained downtown late this evening?"

"I shall not mind it," austere answered Mrs. Vick-Senn, "because you will not be detained downtown late this evening or any other evening."—Chicago Tribune.

A Stitch In Time.

Dorothy was visiting her grandparents in the country for the first time. Seeing a quantity of feathers scattered about the henyard she shook her head in disapproval.

"Grandpa," she said gravely, "you really ought to do something to keep your chickens from wearing out so."—Delinquent.

Her Advantage.

"I don't know which is the greater gossip—Mrs. Lovewells or Miss Scandalmonger."

"They say Mrs. Lovewells has a circulation 25 per cent greater than Miss Scandalmonger."—Chicago Journal.

Decision of character will often give an inferior mind command over a superior.—Wirt.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all druggists 75 cents. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
